These are Facts!

Most all articles in the grocery line are much higher. This advance came after many had placed orders but not all.

Lucky indeed are the customers of a grocer who had placed future orders as they will get high grade goods at last year's prices, while others must either pay more or get inferior qualities. Especially is this true of Canned Peas and Tomatoes. The Central Grocery Co. have the largest stock of canned Vegetables brought to Coshocton by a retail grocer; and our early purchases will enable us to sell to the trade at a value that is now a wholesale price. Apex Peas 10c or 3 for 25c. A full extra standard Tomato only 10c. good values, this would be 2 for 25c. All the higher grades as well. Our Coffee business increases daily, the reason: We sell only fresh, roasted goods; all stunning values 16c, 20c, 25c, 30c and 35c; 4 different grades 20c, but "Central Special" is the leading 20c Coffee of the city. Have you tried it. We need not tell you, you know it "The Central" has the stock, the quality and the price.

Crocodiles and the Cure.

One does not usually connect crocodiles with a health resort—rather the reverse—but the creatures are quite a feature of the Indian bathing place of Manghapir, about nine miles from Kachhi. This town is a place of pilgrimage for pious Hindus, but it is chiefly famous for the value of its waters in the cure of the dread scourge of leprosy. The waters are hot, and more than 60 per cent of the sufferers who bathe there annually, it is said, are cured. The crocodiles are rather noteworthy in that they live in the hot water, apparently suffering no inconvenience from its temperature or medicinal qualities.—Wide World Magazine.

"Dinner's Coming — I Smell It"

Does Your Stomach Feel Happy When Meal-Time Comes?

When you snuffle in the air the appetizing aroma of something cooking, do you feel that you can sit down, open your mouth, pin back your ears and eat with a delicious gusto, everything set before you, and not feel any bad effects from it?

In other words, can your poor stomach take care of everything and anything you put into it? There are thousands and thousands of people who do not know what it is to have a good, strong, healthy stomach, nor do they realize what it is to have a good appetite.

You can have an all-powerful stomach and a fetching appetite for every meal, and every day, if you give your stomach a rest, and let something else take hold of your food for you and digest it as it comes into the stomach, something that is harmless but that really does the work of digesting, quickly and thoroughly.

This something is Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, the most effective little tablets in the world for curing anything that may be wrong with your stomach. One ingredient of these precious little workers digests 2,000 grains of the coarsest or richest food put into the stomach. Think of it, 2,000 grains! They are really an artificial stomach because they act just like the stomach, they digest your food, just as though you didn't have a stomach at all. It supplies the stomach with the digestive juices which have become weak and scanty.

Then your indigestion, dyspepsia, sour risins, brash, belchings, acidity, fermentation, loss of appetite, aversion to food, bloaty feeling, heartburn and nausea will be no more. You can then eat anything you want, all you want, whenever you want, and your stomach will feel fine before and after your meals. Your appetite will be a thing of pleasure to have, your meals will be a pleasure to eat and relish, and your digestion will be thorough and soothing to the whole body.

You can't do your work well, or be cheerful, or have energy or vim or ambition, when your stomach is bad. Make yourself feel good after a hearty meal, feel good all over, clear your mind and make you enjoy life, by taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Give your stomach a rest, so it can right itself, then you need fear nothing. Send us your name and address today and get a free sample package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets by return mail. After you have tried the sample, you will be so thoroughly convinced of what they can do for you that you will go to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box of them.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart, Co., 53 Stuart Bldg., Marshall Mich.

Happiness and Hunger.

"My idea of perfect happiness," said the seely philosopher as he made his fourth round trip to the free lunch counter, "is to be in a position to go into the swellest restaurant, put my hand over the price list of the menu and order what my taste dictates, irrespective of the demands of a diminished wallet."

WASTE OF USEFUL THINGS MAKES AN ENORMOUS TOTAL

Excellent Paper Read at Keene Institute by Miss Della Leech

One of the most enjoyable features of the farmers' institute at Keene was the paper read by Miss Della Leech, of Keene, on "The Wrong of Waste." In fact with all due respect to the speakers from afar at the institutes over the county, they do not surpass the efforts of Coshocton county people, who have written some splendid papers and made some sterling addresses—they know what they are talking about.

The Age has the privilege of printing Miss Leech's paper in full, as follows:

What maintains one vice would bring up two children.

Remember many a little makes a mickle and farther beware of little expenses; a small leak will sink a great ship.

To the contemplative mind one of the saddest things in the world is the waste that is going on and has gone on ever since civilization dawned. Much of this waste is reckless, needless and wicked. It means human effort thrown away it is one form of homicide, for it sacrifices life and the material that life thrives on, and thus hampers its progress.

What does a kernel of corn amount to. Nothing we hear the wasteful farmer say, yet the secretary of agriculture computes that one more kernel of corn on every ear of corn in the state alone would add $1000 to the wealth of the state each year.

A Kansas statistician has recently figured that men of that state are constantly wearing on their coat sleeves $80,000 worth of buttons which serve no earthly use.

We have all been told what a large sum of saving of a few cents a day will amount to if allowed to roll up for a period of years, yet we all go through life really unmindful of the possibilities there are in such little things. And yet how much life and happiness depends upon little things which we too often scorn and pass without a look, without a thought, looking for something great. But we rise by the things that are under our feet. By what we have mastered of good and gain; by the pride deposited and passion slain and the vanquished ill we hourly meet.

Friends there is one capital that you can command as much of as the greatest in the land and that is time. The glorious sun sends forth his golden beams just the same for one and all.

Are you wasting your capital? It is said that a man who shaves himself three times a week for a period of fifty years uses up 230 working days of his life in the operation; on the other hand if he goes to the barber he wastes twice that time and spends $750 to $1,000. The time used by some of our young men in cultivating a mustache and by some of our young ladies in doing their hair would undoubtedly if properly capitalized feed and clothe all the needy people in the land and maintain a cat home in every school district in the country.

It is easy enough of course to overdo economy and make it ridiculous and too, it is often difficult to say whether a given policy is economical or wasteful. In this country our railroads work their engines very hard, wear them out in a few years. In England engines are used very carefully and kept in service several times as long. England accuses our railroads of being wasteful, our authorities say it is best to get the best wear in a reasonable time and then replace it with something newer and better.

So ideas as to waste often differ. When one stands in Echo canyon and sings a song of gladness, not only do the words come back in all their joyousness but the reverberations are tenfold greater. And if curses are uttered the canyon is filled with discord as if a score of demons were howling in it. The songs that we breathe into the air, they go we know not where but often we find them from beginning to end in the heart of a friend.

A pure nature may fail to make the wretch it loves more pure but it becomes more pure itself in the attempt; the tender soul wins deeper tenderness in the despairing efforts to soften the brutal soul beside it. The brave patriot can not make the sluggish nation spring upon its feet for liberty, but his appeals summon a deeper patriotism and love of freedom in his own liberty loving breast. Though we fail in many things we try to accomplish, it is plain that all failures are not time wasted and yet, the precious years we do waste leveling what we raised in haste; doing what must be undone ere content and love be won! First, across the Gulf we cast kite borne threads till lines are passed and habit builds the bridge at last.

How much of our time is wasted in doubt. It paralyzes action, what sense of reality can there be for the

We have enough of negations, enough of doubts. Give us men of faith and action: love and hate with a clear seeing eye, a breast that throbs and a vigorous arm: men who emancipated from idle fancies and empty din of words are silent and putting their hands to the plow drive as then witness, a straight furrow in the field of life. And what is life? Forenoon afternoon and night. Forenoon and afternoon and night. Forenoon and what. The empty song repeats itself. No more? yea that is life: this afternoon, this forenoon sublime, this afternoon a psalm, this night a prayer and time is conquered, and thy crown is won.

A CUP OF GOOD COFFEE

"Fresh Roasted Coffee?—bah! Mother didn't use fresh roasted coffee, she had Arbuckles."

The way to get a good cup of coffee that tastes like Coffee with all the delicious flavor and aroma intact, is to buy a package of the old original Arbuckles' ARIOSA Coffee, and grind it as you want to use it, first warming it a little to develop the flavor and make the grinding easy. Coffee loses its identity as Coffee after being ground or exposed to the air and is easily contaminated by handling.

Arbuckles' was the first roasted packaged coffee.

The pores of each coffee berry are sealed after roasting with fresh eggs and granulated sugar to hold the goodness in and make the coffee settle clear and quickly; an actual application by machinery, of "Mother's" methods—as patented by this firm.

Sold only in packages, sealed for the consumer's protection, containing one pound full weight. Sales for 37 years exceed the combined sales of all the other packaged coffees. The best coffee for you to drink, and saves your money besides.

Same old firm, same old coffee. If your dealer won't supply, write to ARBUCKLE BROS., New York City.

THE FAMILY OF GOD INCLUDES US ALL

The subject of Rev. Robertson's sermon at the M. P. church last evening was "The Family of God." The text was taken from 1 John 3:1 "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us that we should be called the sons of God."

He said in part: "The human family is a type of the family of God. Sin has been the great enemy of the race. It has caused all possible separations, morally religiously, intellectually, etc. The love of God as revealed in the cross can reunite this broken family. The thought of unity is the fundamental theme of the gospel. We get into the family of God by birth, a spiritual birth. When once we become the sons of God we always remain so, though we may be disobedient and punished sons. There is great diversity in the family of God. All conditions of men have a place in the "household of faith." The family of God is universal. It extends from earth to heaven. Our friends are not lost to us in death. We are still all of the family of God only separated by the stream of death. The children of God partake of the nature of deity and they are heir to all the good things in heaven and earth, yea, all the good things now belongeth to them."

That one American has shown in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases. If we would properly investigate them, and in conjunction with this conviction, he believes with scientific accuracy, that the cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, constipation, and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines, and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle wrapper.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will strengthen the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I can cure all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual cause to suffer longer with-out help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

"Ye Sure Need One"

Masquerader

By KATHERINE CECIL THURSTON.
Author of "The Circle," Etc.
Copyright, 1903, 1904, by Harper & Brothers.

Loder walked to the dressing table, then back to the bed. A deep agitation was at work in his mind.

Again Chilcote's lips parted. "Loder," he said faintly, "Loder, I must— I must have it. It's imperative." Once more he attempted to lift himself, but the effort was futile.

Again Loder turned away. "Loder!" With a fierce gesture the other turned on him. "Good heavens, man!" he began. "Then unaccountably his voice changed. The suggestion that had been hovering in his mind took sudden and definite shape. "All right!" he said in a lower voice. "All right! Stay as you are."

He crossed to where the empty tumbler stood and hastily mixed the whiskey and water, then crossing to the mantelpiece where lay the small glass tube containing the tightly packed tablets he paused and glanced once more toward the bed. "How many?" he said laconically.

Chilcote lifted his head. His face was pitifully drawn, but the feverish brightness in his eyes had increased. "Five," he said sharply. "Five. Do you hear, Loder?"

"Five?" Involuntarily Loder lowered the hand that held the tube. From previous confidences of Chilcote's he knew the amount of morphia contained in each tablet and realized that five tablets, if not an absolutely dangerous dose, was at least an excessive one, even for one accustomed to the drug. For a moment his resolution faltered. Then the dominant note of his nature—the unconscious, fundamental egotism on which his character was based—asserted itself beyond denial. It might be reprehensible, it might even be criminal to accede to such a request made by a man in such a condition of body and mind; yet the laws of the universe demanded self assertion—prompted every human mind to desire, to grasp and to hold. With a perception swifter than any he had experienced he realized the certain repulse to be greeted by yielding to his impulse. He looked at Chilcote with his haggard, anxious expression, his eager, restless eyes, and a vision of himself followed sharp upon his glance.

A vision of the waiting labor of the past ten days, of the slowly kindling ambition, of the supremacy all but gained. Then, as the picture completed itself, he lifted his hand with an abrupt movement and dropped the five tablets one after another into the glass.

CHAPTER XXV.
HAYING taken a definite step in any direction, it was not in Loder's nature to wish it retraced. His face was set, but set with determination, when he closed the outer door of his own rooms and passed quietly down the stairs and out into the silent court. The thought of Chilcote, his pitiable condition, his sordid environments, were things that required a firm will to drive into the background of the imagination, but a whole inferno of such visions would not have daunted Loder on that morning as, unobserved by any eyes, he left the little courtyard with its grass, its trees, its pavement—all so distastefully familiar—and passed down the Strand toward life and action.

As he walked these steps increased in speed and vigor. Now, for the first time, he fully appreciated the great mental strain that he had undergone in the past ten days—the unnatural tension; the suppressed but perpetual sense of impending recall; the consequent high pressure at which work and even existence had been carried on. And as he hurried forward the natural reaction to this state of things came upon him in a flood of security and confidence—a strong realization of the temporary respite and freedom for which no price would have seemed too high. The moment for which he had unconsciously lived ever since Chilcote's first memorable proposition was within reach at last, safeguarded by his own action.

The walk from Chilcote's inn to Grosvenor square was long enough to dispel any excitement that his interview had aroused, and long before the well known house came into view he felt sufficiently braced mentally and physically to seek Eve in the morning room, where he instinctively felt he would still be waiting for him.

Thus he encountered and overpassed the obstacle that had so nearly threatened ruin, and with the singleness of purpose that always distinguished him, he was able, once having passed it, to dismiss it altogether from his mind. From the moment of his return to Chilcote's house no mingling as to his own action, no shadow of doubt, rose to trouble his mind. His feelings on the matter were quite simple. He had indignantly desired a certain opportunity. One factor had arisen to bar that opportunity, and he, claiming the right of strength, had set the barrier aside. In the simplicity of the reasoning lay his power to convince, and were a tonic needed to brace him for his task he was provided with one in the masterful sense of a difficulty set at naught. For the man who has fought and conquered one obstacle feels strong to conquer another.

But there are no possibilities so clean as those of nature. At last, when the door of the morning room opened, Loder found that the door was closed.

The pivot of this incident that Loder's attack was to turn, for as Lakeley was fond of remarking, "In the scales of public opinion one dead Englishman has more weight than the whole eastern question." It had been arranged that, following the customary procedure, Loder was to rise after questions at the morning sitting and ask leave to move the adjournment of the house on a definite matter of urgent public importance, upon which—leave having been granted by the rising of forty members in his support—the way was to lie open for his definite attack at the evening sitting. And it was with a mind attuned to this plan of action that he retired to the study immediately he had breakfasted and settled to a final revision of his speech before an early party conference should compel him to leave the house. But here again circumstances were destined to change his programme. Scarcely had he sorted his notes and drawn his chair to Chilcote's desk than Renwick entered the room with the same air of important haste that he had shown on a previous occasion.

"A letter from Mr. Fraide, sir. But there's no answer," he said, with unusual brevity.

Loder waited till he had left the room; then he tore the letter open. He read:

My Dear Chilcote—Lakeley is the recipient of special and very vital news from Moscow—unofficial, but none the less alarming. Acts of Russian aggression toward British traders are reported to be rapidly increasing, and it is stated that the authority of the consulate is treated with contempt. Pending a possible confirmation of this, I would suggest that you keep an open mind on the subject of tonight's speech. By adopting an anticipatory—even an unprepared—attitude you may find your hand materially strengthened. I shall put my opinions before you more explicitly when we meet. Yours faithfully,

HERBERT FRAIDE.

The letter, worded with Fraide's usual restraint, made a strong impression on its recipient. The thought that his speech might not only express opinions already tacitly held, but voice a situation of intense and national importance, struck him with full force. For many minutes after he had grasped the meaning of Fraide's message he sat neglectful of his notes, his elbows resting on the desk, his face between his hands, stirred by the suggestion that here might lie a greater opportunity than any he had anticipated.

Still moved by this new suggestion, he attended the party convolve that Fraide had convened and afterward lunched with and accompanied his leader to the house. They spoke very little as they drove to Westminster, for each was engrossed by his own thoughts. Only once did Fraide allude to the incident that was paramount in both their minds. Then, turning to Loder with a smile of encouragement, he laid his fingers for an instant on his arm.

"Chilcote," he had said, "when the time comes, remember you have all my confidence."

Looking back upon that day, Loder often wondered at the calmness with which he bore the uncertainty. To sit apparently unmoved and wait without emotion for news that might change the whole tenor of one's action would have tried the stoicism of the most experienced; to the novice it was well nigh unendurable. And it was under these conditions and fighting against these odds that he sat through the long afternoon in Chilcote's place, obeying the dictates of his chief. But if the day was fraught with difficulties for him it was fraught with dullness and disappointment for others, for the undercurrent of interest that had stirred at the Easter adjournment and risen with added force on this first day of the new session was gradually but surely threatened with extinction as hour after hour passed bringing no suggestion of the battle that had on every side been tacitly expected. Slowly and unmistakably speculation and dissatisfaction crept into the atmosphere of the house as moment succeeded moment and the opposition made no sign. Was Fraide shirking the attack or was he playing a waiting game? Again and again the question arose, filling the air with a passing flicker of interest, but each time it sprang up only to die down again as the ordinary business of the day dragged itself out.

Gradually, as the afternoon wore on, daylight began to fade. Loder, sitting rigidly in Chilcote's place, watched with suppressed inquiry the faces of the men who entered through the constantly swinging doors, but not one face, so eagerly scanned, carried the message for which he waited. Monotonously and mechanically the time passed. The government, adopting a neutral attitude, carefully skirted all dangerous subjects, while the opposition, acting under Fraide's suggestion, assailed rather than hindered the programme of postponement. For the moment the eagerly anticipated reassembling threatened dismal failure, and it was with a universal movement of weariness and relief that at last the house rose to close.

The new government for which Fraide had waited came indeed, but it came with a force he had little anticipated. With a thrill of awe and consternation men heard and repeated the astounding news that, while personally exercising his authority on behalf of British traders, Sir William Brice-Field, consul general at Moscow, had been fired at by a Russian officer and instantly killed.

The interval immediately following the receipt of this news was too confused for detailed remembrance. Two ideas made themselves slowly felt—a deep horror that such an event could befall itself upon our high civilization and a strong personal dismay that so honored, distinguished and esteemed a representative as Sir William Brice-Field could have been allowed to meet death in so terrible a manner.

It was in the consciousness of this feeling, the consciousness that in his own person he might voice not only the feelings of his party, but those of the whole country, that Loder rose an hour later to make his long delayed attack.

He stood silent for a moment, as he had done on an earlier occasion, but this time his motive was different. Roused beyond any feeling of self-consciousness, he waited as by right for the full attention of the house; then, quietly, but with self possessed firmness, he moved the motion for adjournment.

Like a match to a train of powder the words set flame to the excitement that had smoldered for weeks, and in an atmosphere of stirring activity, a scene of such tense and vital concentration as the house has rarely witnessed, he found inspiration for his great achievement.

To give Loder's speech in mere words would be little short of futile. The gift of oratory is too illusive, too much a matter of eye and voice and individuality, to allow of cold reproduction. To those who heard him speak on that night of April 18 the speech will require no recalling, and to those who did not hear him there would be no substitute in bare reproduction.

In the moment of action it mattered nothing to him that his previous preparations were to a great extent rendered useless by this news that had come with such paralyzing effect. In the sweeping consciousness of his own ability he found added joy in the freedom it opened up. He ceased to consider that by fate he was a Conservative, bound by traditional conventionalities. In that great moment he knew himself sufficiently a man to exercise whatever individuality instinct prompted. He forgot the didactic methods by which he had proposed to show knowledge of his subject, both as a past and a future factor in European politics. With his own strong appreciation of present things he saw and grasped the vast present interest lying beneath his hand.

For fifty minutes he held the interest of the house, speaking insistently, fearlessly, commandingly on the immediate need of action. He unhesitatingly pointed out that the news which had just reached England was not so much an appalling fact as a sinister warning to those in whose keeping lay the safety of the country's interests. Lastly, with a fine touch of eloquence, he paid tribute to the steadfast fidelity of such men as Sir William Brice-Field, who, whatever political complications arise at home, pursue their duty unswervingly on the outposts of the empire.

At his last words there was silence—the silence that marks a genuine effect—then all at once, with vehement, impressive force, the storm of enthusiasm broke its bounds.

It was one of those stupendous bursts of feeling that no etiquette, no decorum, is powerful enough to quell. As he resumed his seat, very pale, but exalted as men are exalted only once or twice in a lifetime, it rose about him—clamorous, spontaneous, undeniable. Near at hand were the faces of his party, excited and triumphant; across the house were the faces of Serborough and his ministry, uncomfortable and disturbed. The tumult swelled, then fell away, and in the partial lull that followed Fraide leaned over the back of his seat. His quiet, dignified expression was unaltered, but his eyes were intensely bright.

"Chilcote," he whispered, "I don't congratulate you or myself. I congratulate the country on possessing a great man."

The remaining features of the debate followed quickly one upon the other. The electric atmosphere of the house possessed a strong incentive power. Immediately Loder's ovation had subsided, the undersecretary for foreign affairs rose and in a careful and noncommittal reply defended the attitude of the government.

Next came Fraide, who, in one of his rare and polished speeches, touched with much feeling upon his personal grief at the news reported from Persia and made emphatic indorsement of Loder's words.

Following Fraide came one or two dissentient Liberals, and then Serborough himself closed the debate. His speech was masterly and fluent; but though any dissimulation he may have felt was well disguised under a tone of reassuring ease, the attempt to rehabilitate his position—already weakened in more than one direction—was a task beyond his strength.

Amid extraordinary excitement the division followed, and with it a government defeat.

It was not until half an hour after the votes had been taken that Loder, freed at last from persistent congratulations, found opportunity to look for Eve. In accordance with a promise made that morning, he was to find her waiting outside the ladies' gallery at the close of the debate.

Rev. Kohler is Active in C'mbr'ge

Rev. Henry Kohler, the pastor of the U. B. church in Cambridge just now assisting Dr. W. O. Siffert in a great revival service. The meetings are attracting much interest and already 50 conversions have been made. Rev. Kohler preached Wednesday evening on the theme "Refusing the Last Chance" and so powerful were his remarks that six conversions followed.

Rev. Kohler will return to Co-shooton Saturday and will begin a series of his meetings at his church here on Sunday. Ray Mohr who is known to many Co-shooton people will lead the singing.

ROSCOE.

Roscoe Jan. 31—Miss Margaret Jacobs had a party of about twenty of her young friends at her home on Monday evening. Refreshments were served, music and games furnished amusement and all were delighted with the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Finley recently married have commenced house-keeping on North Fourth street, Co-shooton.

Wolfe Jacobs of Indiana, with his brother is spending a few days with Postmaster Jacobs.

Quarterly meet gleeexm

Quarterly meeting exercises were held at the M. B. church last Sunday, the forenoon sermon being delivered by Rev. Akers of Conesville. His subject was "God is all in all" and his discourse was highly appreciated by a large audience.

A number of Roscoe people attended the burial of Mrs. Mullett at Prairie chapel on last Sunday. Deceased was formerly Miss Randles a well respected lady and sister of Mrs. Charles Hoop of Roscoe.

Mrs. Maggie Frickey an elderly lady has been seriously ill with flu trouble for several weeks.

Rev. Maughman is conducting revival work at Canal Lewisville.

Miss Lulu Compton has been spending the past week with friends in the Mohawk Village vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Haines of Indiana are spending a few weeks with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson McConnell. Mr. Haines being employed in the dairy business.

It is reported that Lee Grace has purchased the Wright dairy west of town and that Mr. Wright will move to his farm near East Union.

George Ricketts and family have moved to rooms in the Jane Compton residence. Mrs. Compton having decided that owing to her extreme old age and frail health it is not best for her to live alone.

Mr. and Mrs. George Compton attended the burial of Miranda Love at Keen last Saturday.

We welcome the changed condition of the roads from deep mud last week to a smooth frozen surface this week.

NATURE'S CATARRH CURE.

Sensible and Scientific Way to Cure This Disagreeable Disease. Nearly everyone suffers at one time or another with catarrh.

The natural way to cure this disagreeable disease is by applying healing medications direct to the diseased spot.

In no other way can this be done as naturally as by the use of Hyomei, breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit.

Put several drops of Hyomei in the inhaler and then for a few minutes four or five times a day, let the air you breathe come through it. In that way all the air that enters the nasal passages, the throat or the lungs, is filled with Hyomei's healing medication, reaching the most remote air cells of the respiratory organs, destroying all catarrhal germs and soothing and healing the irritated membrane.

A few days' use of Hyomei will show how quickly it relieves all catarrhal conditions, and you will not have to use it long before you find it has effected a complete and lasting cure.

So strong is C. E. Anderson's faith in the power of Hyomei to cure catarrhal troubles that with every dollar outfit he gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy gives satisfaction. He takes all the responsibility and you cannot afford to suffer longer with catarrh when an offer like this is made to you.

Should the extra bottles of Hyomei be needed they can be obtained for 50c, making this one of the most economical as well as the most reliable.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, many fatal results are sure to follow.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable curative power has been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine, you should have the best.

Wilson, Conn., Feb. 18, 1906.

Dear Sirs: A man could not be in any worse condition than I was with kidney and bladder troubles. I doctored with several good doctors and one physician told me I had Bright's Disease and that I would not live over six months. Another told me it was gall stones. I had severe pains in my kidneys all the while, could not stoop over, would be dizzy, could not lie down without someone helped me up; my back was weak and pained me; urine was as thick as cream and it would scald me something dreadful. I had to get up many times in the night to urinate.

I took Swamp-Root and today I am a well man and never felt better. All of my troubles have gone and show no signs of returning. I take my oath that Swamp-Root put me where I am today and I can prove it by acquaintances.

Very truly yours,
E. H. Rand.

Editorial Note—In order to prove the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy they needed. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to state this generous offer in the Co-shooton Daily Age. The genuineness of this offer is guaranteed.

Invitation to Grange.

Mrs. Elizabeth Phelps Farnham, lecturer of Oswego county (N. Y.) Pomona grange and who has given much attention to juvenile grange work, says that some of the best reasons for organizing juvenile granges were based upon the plan of holding them at the same time as the subordinate grange.

First, many members who would be helpful to the Order and who would find it helpful to them cannot attend unless accompanied by their children; second, the children, in whom all are interested, add greatly to the interest of the lecturer's programme if allowed to enter after the business meeting is over and are asked to recite, read or sing, as the case may be; third, and by no means the least in favor of the meetings occurring at the same time and place, is the grange atmosphere, which the children absorb by attending the meetings with their elders and the confidence they gain at an early age by assisting in the work before them. The juvenile grange is the primary grange school where the grangers of the future are trained for the work of the Order.

Next national grange meeting will be at Hartford, Conn., in November 1907.

The Need of Money For Bank Reserves
 By WILLIAM B. RIDGELY, Comptroller of the United States Currency.

OUR danger seems to be in our EXCESS OF PROSPER-ITY. The great demand seems to be for money for bank reserves, which exists not only in the United States, but in all the other commercial countries of the world. It is with us more than the usual CROP MOVING stringency.
 This calls attention more strongly than ever to the necessity of some change in the currency of the United States which will enable the banks and the people to handle a larger amount of business WITH LESS DISTURBANCE of financial conditions.

The only practical way to do this is to change the system of ISSU-ING BANK NOTES. When there is an active demand for reserve money AS RESERVE in the banks and at the same time an increased demand for currency for cash transactions, it is a very wasteful use of reserve money to take it out of the banks either to be locked up in the treasury or to serve as a circulating medium for cash payments.

IT WOULD BE FAR BETTER IF OUR BANKS COULD KEEP RESERVE MONEY ON HAND AS RESERVE AND FURNISH THE CASH CURRENCY IN BANK NOTES.
 This is a matter of far greater importance to the general public and the people engaged in all lines of business than it is to the banks themselves, except so far as they may be interested in the general prosperity, which, of course, is the truer and HIGHER INTEREST of a bank. The banks can view with equanimity an active demand for money and an increase in the rate of interest.

The scarcity of money and the higher rate of interest make the handling of the crops raised for our farming population more difficult AND MORE EXPENSIVE. This increased cost must ultimately be paid by the man who raises the crops. He is therefore more vitally interested than any one else in an improvement in our facilities for providing CROP MOVING FUNDS.
 Any financial disturbance caused by tightness of money is felt more directly and keenly, perhaps, by men engaged in commercial, manufacturing or mining industries. All modern business must necessarily be done largely ON CREDIT.
 A bill, the object of which is to increase the elasticity of our currency, has been recommended by the banking and currency committee to the house of representatives dealing with this subject. It may not be a perfect bill and may not give us ideal conditions in our currency laws, but it is A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION. Its main features have the indorsement and support of the New York Chamber of Commerce, the leading commercial body of the United States, and of a commission appointed by the American Bankers' association, embracing representatives from all the leading banks of the country.

IN THE INTEREST NOT ONLY OF FINANCIERS AND BANK-ERS, BUT OF ALL THE PEOPLE OF THE COUNTRY, IN EVERY LINE OF TRADE AND ALL CLASSES OF PEOPLE, INCLUDING ESPECIALLY THE FARMING, INDUSTRIAL AND WORKING CLASSES, THIS BILL, OR SOMETHING LIKE IT, SHOULD BE PASSED.

GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR INDIGESTION
 Interesting Statement by C. E. Anderson
 When a man comes into this store and calls for any particular indigestion remedy, we always give him what he asks for, but in case he leaves it to us we usually recommend Pepsikola tablets.
 Here is a preparation we have been selling right over the counter for years, on from actual observation we know it must do good, and really does relieve and cure indigestion and dyspepsia or there would be a steady stream of people coming back for their money, as every 25 cent box is sold with the understanding that you must be decidedly benefited or there is nothing to pay.
 You simply try Pepsikola tablets with the understanding that they will steady your nerves, improve your appetite, relieve wind belching, coated tongue, sour stomach, fullness after eating, weakened energy, and other symptoms of indigestion or C.
 E. Anderson is ready at any time to pay back your money without the least argument.

ANITA BRIDGER, BEAUTY OF THE STAGE.
 Miss Anita Bridger is one of the somewhat numerous San Francisco girls who have won renown on the stage in one line or another. She lived in her native city until eight or nine years ago, when she was "discovered" in the east.
 Miss Bridger played juvenile parts in San Francisco and Salt Lake City stock companies before she attained the broader arena. She has won credit in the leading juvenile roles in a dozen plays under the management of Augustus Daly, Charles Dickson and others.

GETS 70 EGGS EACH DAY FROM 300 HENS
 An Age reporter visited the hennery of Supt. Platt near Roscoe, Thursday L. M. Best of Pittsburgh is in charge. He took charge of the farm about Nov. 1, and is getting between six and seven dozen eggs daily from three hundred hens.
 The henneries have a south front giving the poultry the benefit of the sun throughout the day. The main thing, however in caring for hens is the food and water. Mr. Best is thoroughly posted on the care of poultry. The first feed in the morning consisting of grain, at seven o'clock is a light one followed by a drink of warm water, then at seven thirty they are given another light feed of grain, they are watered a number of times during the day always with warm water. At noon a warm mash in which clover is cut very fine is given them. All feed is thrown in little so as to give the hens exercise. The principal meal of the day consisting of grain is at evening. Mr. Best says the fatter the food is changed the better the chickens will do.

Just On The Side
 I want to tell you I remarked a Coshocton man who had just returned from Columbus, "we do not properly appreciate the comfort of a central hot water heating system here. I was over in Columbus for a couple of days and my hotel room—it was a high, priced hotel too—was heated by a natural gas grate. They were so fearful some one might blow up that there was no key to the pipe in the room and you had to ring for a bell boy to turn on your gas and then had to ring again to have him come and turn it off. I learned for Coshocton and her comfortable central heat
 it is the only way."

El Dorado.
 The modern meaning of El Dorado may be traced as follows: One of Pi-zarro's men said that he had discovered a land of boundless wealth between the Orinoco and the Amazon.
 This country was named El Dorado, and many adventurers, among them
 Sir Walter Raleigh, endeavored to find it; hence the name has come to mean a golden country of the mind, a fabulous land of fabulous wealth, much as Cockaigne, a fancied land of luxury and idleness.—New York American

LYMA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Is acknowledged to be the most successful remedy in the country for those painful ailments peculiar to women.

For more than 30 years it has been curing Female Complaints, such as Inflammation, and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, Backache, and is peculiarly adapted to the Change of Life.

Records show that it has cured more cases of Female Ills than any other one remedy known.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound dissolves and expels tumors at an early stage of development. Dragging Sensations causing pain, weight, and headache are relieved and permanently cured by its use.

It corrects Irregularities or Painful Functions, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility; also, Dizziness, Faintness, Extreme Lassitude, "Don't care" feeling, Irritability, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Flatulency, Melancholia or the "Blues." These are sure indications of female weakness or some organic derangement.

For Kidney Complaints of either sex Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a most excellent remedy.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice. She is the Mrs. Pinkham who has been advising sick women free of charge for more than twenty years, and before that she assisted her mother-in-law Lydia E. Pinkham in advising. Thus she is well qualified to guide sick women back to health. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Society

The Calendar.

Today — The Woman's Missionary society of the Roscoe M. E. church meets with Mrs. M. G. Hack.

The Women's Missionary society of the Presbyterian church meets at the parsonage.

District one of the U. B. church meets with Mrs. Tweed.

The Women's Missionary society of the Baptist church meets with Mrs. Heugel.

The Daughters of Rebekah hold their regular meeting.

Miss Sara Marshall entertains the members of the Ransom store club at six o'clock dinner this evening.

Will Go South.

Mrs. Sarah Wilson and Mr. Edson Wilson will leave shortly for Florida where they will spend several months.

For Miss Bachman.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Brice will entertain at cards this evening for Miss Amelia Bachman of Roswell, N. M.

The Mary Reed Standard Bearers.

The Mary Reed Standard Bearers met Thursday evening with Mrs. Gilbert McKee but owing to the unfavorable weather only a few members were able to be present. Miss Black read an excellent paper on "The Religion of India" after which refreshments were served and the club adjourned.

The Protected Home Circle.

The Protected Home Circle will have its regular meeting next Monday evening and among those in attendance will be State Deputy Stratton of Akron and District Deputy L. G. Graves of Massillon. There will be address and music before the refreshments are served.

Mrs. Stratton will be in Coshocton but the one evening but Mr. Graves will stay for two weeks on a membership campaign.

Led by Mrs. Tish.

This evening is the last of the meetings which have been held at the U. B. church this week in preparation for the special evangelistic services which will begin next Sunday. The meetings have all been well attended and a gratifying amount of interest has been manifested. In the absence of Rev. Kohler the meeting will be led by Mrs. Tish.

The Knights of Columbus.

About forty people thoroughly enjoyed the card party which the K. of C's. gave Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Fallon on Chestnut street among the players being Miss Amelia Bachman of Roswell, N. M., and Miss Donovan of Dennison. Delightful refreshments were served after the game.

The Coshoctonian Dance.

Last night was Coshoctonian night and the weather man, true to his habit, "turned on" extremely disagreeable weather. Some times he sends rain and sometimes snow but last evening, not wishing to be partial, he sent a pleasing (?) mixture of both. Johnson's orchestra played the first dance at 8 o'clock and the "Home" waltz at midnight. Cinderella wise and among those who enjoyed the evening were Mr. Dan Laws Smith and Miss Smith of Columbus who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Forbes.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

In spite of the ice and sleet which made atmospheric conditions anything but delightful Thursday afternoon a large company of W. C. T. U. women attended the meeting which was held with Mrs. St. Clair and much interest was manifested. Mrs. Dickey was the leader and in the preliminary devotional service tribute was paid to the faithful work of Miss Ella Betts whose sudden death occurred but a fortnight ago. Then a letter of greeting was read from Mrs. Drummond. Next Mrs. Clarence Eddy, accompanied by Mrs. B. A. McGinnis sang after which Mrs. Thrapp gave a short address. At the conclusion of her remarks Mrs. Thrapp was given a bouquet by the Coshocton ladies. The rest of the rest of the afternoon was devoted to the serving of refreshments and the making of plans which, when carried out, will sustain the interest which is being taken by all the members of the union. A social afternoon and tea has been arranged for next Tuesday afternoon and evening at Mrs. Kling's home on St. Patrick's day. Mrs. James Hogan will lend her house to the ladies for a genuine St. Patrick's day social.

The next regular meeting will be held Feb. 14 with Mrs. Baughman and will be a memorial to Frances Willard with Mrs. Shraake as the leader.

The outlook for W. C. T. U. work all over the county is very encouraging and the ladies feel that the year of 1907 is to bring them bigger and better results than any preceding one.

The W. O. C. Club.

The members of the W. O. C. club were royally entertained Thursday evening by Mrs. Oscar Haverbeck at her home on North Eighth street. The early part of the evening was given over to cards and two sets of prizes were given; the royals, a china plate and a chocolate pot went to Mrs. George Bordenkircher and Mrs. Victor Graham and the consolation to Mrs. Will Love and Mrs. Dossia Shaw; they were a china rose bowl and a vase. At half past ten the games ended and the players were invited to the dining room where an elaborate supper was served on the table being prettily decorated with carnations.

The next regular meeting of the club will be with Mrs. Jennie Denzer on Feb. 14.

A Robust Ghost.

John Leech and a member of the Millais family once stayed a night at Cowdray hall, in England, where many guests being present, the two friends had no alternative but to accept rooms in an isolated wing supposed to be haunted. In the middle of the night Millais awoke, believing that some giant was shaking him violently by the shoulder. This was supposed to be the favorite device of the ghost. He rushed into a corridor and found Leech sitting there trembling and declaring that he would not for the world go back to his room. They spent the remainder of the night in the corridor, but in the morning said nothing of their experiences. In the afternoon there arrived an evening paper telling of a violent earthquake in the locality. The earthquake was what the two visitors believed to be their ghost.

Valuable Pebbles.

Between the northern point of Long Island and Watch Hill lies a row of little islands, two of which, Plum Island and Goose Island, possess a peculiar form of mineral wealth. It consists in heaps of richly colored quartz pebbles, showing red, yellow, purple and other hues, which are locally called agates. They are used in making stained glass windows, and there is a sufficient demand for them in New York to keep the owners of one or two sloops employed in gathering them from the beaches, where the waves continually roll and polish them, bringing out the beauty of their colors.

Denatured Alcohol.

The first barrel of the celebrated denatured alcohol to come to Zanesville arrived in the city Thursday consigned to Lester A. Baird, the North Fourth street druggist.

A Policeman's Strategy.

When Captain W. E. Weber was a patrolman a clothing store upon his beat was robbed one night. The thief took off his own old clothes and left them in the store. He had put on a new suit and worn it away. The old suit was that of a boy about fifteen years old.

Weber gathered up the clothes and took them to the old fire patrol house at Seventh avenue and Wyandotte street. He put them upon the floor and, turning the hose on them, drenched them with water. Then he went down to the junction where at that time the newsboys congregated in great numbers. He gathered a dozen of them around him.

"Boys," he said, "the police found some clothes down on the river bank this morning. It looks like a boy had been drowned. I want all of you to come up to the fire station and look at the clothes. Maybe you can tell me who they belonged to."

No sooner had the "newsies" gathered around the pile of water soaked clothes than one little fellow spoke up: "Them's Nifty Smith's. I seen him wearin' them red galluses, an' he sewed that patch on the knee there hisself."

Other boys corroborated this story. In less than an hour the officer had corralled Nifty and made him confess to the robbery.—Kansas City Star.

The New Kind

Is Your Boy or Girl Thin or Nervous?

Parents do not seem to realize the great importance of curing nervousness in their children. They call in a doctor for a cough or a cold, but nervousness does not strike them as being serious enough. It is. A thin, nervous child rarely develops into a strong, healthy man or woman. More often nervous conditions become chronic and the child becomes a life-long, delicate, nervous invalid.

You can positively cure nervousness in your child with

Rexall Americantils Elixir

This remarkable remedy supplies phosphorus in soluble form to the body, tones and quiets the nerves and brings them to a normal, permanently healthy condition. The first bottle will convince you of the genuine merit of this remedy. Your duty to your child should urge you to try it.

President Lincoln's One Brief Vacation

By WALTON WILLIAMS

Copyright, 1907, by American Press Association

DURING his more than four years as president of the United States Abraham Lincoln took but one vacation. That was just after the beginning of his new term, after four years of constant application to the nation's business in time of terrible civil war. The vacation ended but a few days before the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, but it was a glorious vacation and was greatly enjoyed by the sad and weary president.

Lincoln's vacation was quite different from the presidential outings to which we are accustomed of late. He did not seek a sequestered lake far up in the north, where he could fish, cut bait and swap yarns with cronies, nor

On the 2d of April the joyful news that Richmond had been evacuated reached City Point, and Lincoln immediately said, "I want to see Richmond."

Two days later he started up the James, and, with four friends and a guard of ten United States marines, the president of the United States, landing from his little steamer, walked into Richmond, the Confederate capital, which for four years his armies had been trying to capture. It is related that an old negro threw himself at the feet of Lincoln, kissing the big boots which he wore, and cried out:

"Bress de Lawd! Heah am de great Messiah!"

Such crowds gathered about the president, who was so tall that he could be seen and recognized even from the outer edge of the multitude, that the small guard of marines had a hard struggle to get him through the throng to the White House of the Confederacy, the home of Jefferson Davis during the war. Mr. Davis of course had taken his departure. The Federal troops made his house their headquarters. For two days Lincoln remained in Richmond, amid a hostile population plentifully sprinkled with friends, and no harm came to him, nor was there any threat of harm. He was enjoying his holiday. He talked to many officers regarding the coming peace and what should be done for the restoration of the south. His advice was for liberal terms and kindness to the southern people.

The president returned to City Point, where a squad of Confederate prisoners cheered him. He turned to Admiral Porter and remarked:

"They will never shoulder a musket again in anger, and if Grant is wise he will leave them their guns to shoot crows with and their horses to plow with."

"Let them down easy," he had said to the military governor of Richmond.

Word reached the president at City Point that his secretary of state, Mr. Seward, had been thrown from a carriage and injured. This cut short his vacation, for he returned to Washington at once. It was observed by members of his cabinet upon his return that a great change had come over the president. His thin face had grown thinner during the increasing sorrows of the war, and latterly it had assumed a gray pallor that was almost ghastly. His eyes looked forth an unutterable grief. He had borne the burdens of a great nation in its time of keenest agony, and the terrible stress and strain of those four years were reflected in the features of the man. But now—after his first and only vacation—what a change! The man walked with a springy step, the stoop disappeared from his shoulders, the tense lines in his drawn, sad face began to disappear, and there was a hint of ruddiness in his cheeks, and his laugh was hearty.

Yet it was not the vacation that had rejuvenated Lincoln. It was the very recent success of his armies, the evacuation of Richmond and, last and greatest, the surrender of Lee on the 9th of April—these things had transformed him. For five days he was the happiest man in the United States or in the world, the happiest because for four years he had been the saddest, and now that indescribable sadness, in the words of one of his friends, "had been suddenly changed for an equally indescribable expression of serene joy, as if conscious that the great purpose of his life had been achieved."

During this time he said to his wife: "Mary, we have had a hard time of it since we came to Washington, but now we shall have four more years here of did he betake himself to a swamp jungle or a mountain fastness to shoot bears or wildcats. He took a boat ride. He went down to City Point, on the James river, in Virginia, to see how General Grant's army was getting along. Grant had, his headquarters there in a group of cottages on a high bluff where the James and the Appomattox rivers join. For ten days the president lived there, greeting his great generals, chatting with the lesser officers and visiting the private soldiers in their tents. Always for commanding general or for the blue-bloused man in the ranks he had a word of cheer and frequently a funny little story that illustrated some wise point of argument.

All day on the 31st of March, when Grant was beginning his final movement against Lee, Lincoln sat in the telegraph office at headquarters forwarding to Mr. Stanton, secretary of war, the reports that came in from Grant, who was here and there and everywhere up and down his long line of army maneuvers. Joyous news Lincoln sent to Washington. One item was the victory of General Sheridan at Five Points on the 1st of April. Another was the evacuation of Petersburg. The president himself entered Petersburg but a few hours after the Confederates moved out for a final talk with Grant, who was about to move on from there after the retreating army.

AN OLD NEGRO THREW HIMSELF AT THE FEET OF LINCOLN.

It was an odd sort of vacation. Lincoln called it his holiday, but as a matter of fact he was still at work, doing his duty by the people, making personal inspection of the army and offering in his almost apologetic manner now and then a suggestion to General Grant.

General Sherman, fresh from his famous march to the sea, visited City Point to confer with Lincoln and Grant. All knew that the war was drawing to its close; that the great struggle was nearly over; that ultimate victory lay just beyond. Grant and Sherman each believed that he must fight one more terrible battle.

"Don't do it if you can help it," urged the humane Lincoln. "No more bloodshed, no more bloodshed," he repeatedly said.

All day on the 31st of March, when Grant was beginning his final movement against Lee, Lincoln sat in the telegraph office at headquarters forwarding to Mr. Stanton, secretary of war, the reports that came in from Grant, who was here and there and everywhere up and down his long line of army maneuvers. Joyous news Lincoln sent to Washington. One item was the victory of General Sheridan at Five Points on the 1st of April. Another was the evacuation of Petersburg. easier times, and then we'll go back to Illinois and live the rest of our lives in peace and quiet. I'll open a law office in Springfield or Chicago and do work enough to make a living for us."

Then on the night of April 14, when the rejuvenated chief was smiling broadly at a comedian's joke in the theater, came the assassin's bullet.

RHEUMATISM BEYOND CONTROL

Uric-O Treatment Advised

Very few people nowadays are free from some form of Rheumatism. In fact, it looks as though the disease was fast tripping our nation. People of means are trying the great specialists, and they go from East to West and to all parts of the earth in search of medical help and relief.

The greatest boon to mankind has recently been brought to light, especially to those who suffer with Rheumatic Acid Poisoning. It is a harmless remedy called URIC-O. A treatment for the blood, bladder and kidneys. This marvelous remedy, taken internally, acts in a thorough manner on the blood, relieving those terrible pains that nearly craze the mind. URIC-O is made for Rheumatism only, and it is a positive cure for the disease in all its forms. It is harmless and pleasant to take, containing no poison, alcohol or whiskey, and it takes no effect on the stomach and bowels. It is a sure cure for Rheumatism, and it is a sure cure for Rheumatism.

Neglected Colds Threaten Life

(From the Chicago Tribune)
"Don't trifle with a cold," is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child. Proper food, good ventilation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds. If they are maintained through the changeable weather of autumn, winter and spring, the chances of a surprise from ordinary colds will be slight. But the ordinary light cold will become severe if neglected, and a well established ripe cold is to the germs of diphtheria what honey is to the bee. The greatest menace to child life at this season of the year is the neglected cold. Whether it is a child or adult, the cold slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The great popularity and immense sale of this preparation has been attained by its remarkable cures of this ailment. A cold never results in pneumonia when it is given. For sale by C. E. Anderson's Drug and Book Store and C. M. Furgeson, Roscoe.

DENNISON WILL HAVE BIG GOAL TENDER TONIGHT

The Dennison polo team will be in this city tonight for the game with Coshocton. They will probably have the big Uhrichsville goal tender to fill the place made vacant by Carr's resignation, and the remainder of the team will be intact. The goal tender is a big fellow, nearly covering the front of the cage, and it is almost impossible to hook the ball past him. The Uhrichsville team will be at their best for tonight's game, and an exciting exhibition of polo will be the result.

UHRICHSVILLE IS SEEKING A NEW HALF BACK

Judge Hoke and Sandy Bend Justice

He Tells of the Case of Steve Taylor and How It Had Tried His Soul.

[Copyright, 1906, by R. Douglas.]
"I wish to explain to this crowd," said Judge Hoke of Sandy Bend as court was duly opened, "that I'm not feeling well today. I'm feeling homesick; I'm feeling lonesome; I'm feeling as if there was nuthin' more to live for on this terrestrial globe of ours. I won't deny that as I sat in the Red Dog saloon half an hour since (the Red Dog belongs to this yere court and is the leadin' saloon for a hundred miles around that was tears in my eyes, and I wondered if the reputation which old Wyoming has been a hundred years in buildin' up was to go to smash in a day.

"My friends, I have seen men and women die. I have seen innocent babies have a fit and go sailin' away on angels' wings. I have seen the lightning bolt tear down mountains and the awful cyclone level forests. I have heard a Digger Indian who had been bit by a rattlesnake call upon heaven to save him, and I have seen a Chinaman who had taken carbolic acid writhe upon the ground like a serpent. I have held the hand of an old man as he died, and I have smoothed the brow of a woman as the death rattle sounded in her throat.

"Don't let any human hyenas in this courtroom make a mistake on me. For twenty years I've been a resident of Sandy Bend, doin' my level best to uphold the honor and dignity of this sovereign commonwealth. For the last five years I've been a justice of the peace in and for the four counties of Acc High, Crippled Dog, Blind Horse and Hell Bent, and I reckon you'll all agree that my great object has been to uphold the glorious reputation left behind by our forefathers. I've not only been careful to mete out justice, but to let all my decisions redound to the credit of the goddess with a haudkerchief over her eyes and a pair of scales in her hands.

"What happened three days ago? Gentlemen, gaze on Steve Taylor over there and let your souls wonder if such things can be in this enlightened century; also, gaze on Bill Whiting, on the other hand, and let them same souls of yours play tag around this courthouse and bring up all a-standin' again the front door. Steve Taylor has been among-us for two years. He carries two guns, and he has given everybody to understand that the 'leven notches cut into the rock represented the 'leven men he removed from airth while dwellin' in New Mexico. I can't say that any of us have been afraid of him, but we have gazed on those notches and been sorter keener not to graze him with our elbows as we passed. When he has asked for credit at the Red Dog I have smilingly given it to him; not because I thought he'd ever squar' up, but because I didn't want to seem to doubt his story about them 'leven men sleepin' under the side of a distant territory.

"On one occasion, and that wasn't long ago, when Steve was one in a five handed game of poker and raked in a big pot on what he said was a straight, some of us knew that he was mistaken. It wasn't that we was afraid that we didn't tell him so, but he seemed so happy that night that we concluded not to upset him.

"As to Bill Whiting, he's been hangin' around for only a few months, but he was sized up from the very first as a chump and a dub. Is there anybody present in this courtroom who hasn't give him the boot? Is there a Chinaman in this town who hasn't bounced him around? If your gorge rises and your souls palpitate as you look the pair over I shan't blame you.

"Three days ago, as we all know, Steve, the killer of 'leven men, got out on his broncho for Antelope hills. He had a tent and blankets and grub along. He was goin' to search for gold in the Antelopes, and he got as many as five free drinks before he finally started. Them guns o' his was chuck up with cartridges, and he must have had a boundin' of the heart as his gallant steed ambled along with him. Little did we think as we stood in front of the Red Dog and saw him disappear around the first bend in the trail that he was the one man of all who'd soon cast a slur on the name of old Wyoming so deep and broad and long that it will take a hundred years to wash it out. If I speak with emotion and with tears in my eyes wait and see if I'm not justified.

"Yes, Steve Taylor rode away like a cavalier of old, and nobody looked around to see whether Bill Whiting was among us or not. He wasn't, however. He was sloshin' around up the Antelope trail and waitin' to do business with Steve. Bimeby Steve gets up to him. His hoss was amblin' and his guns was a-shovin' them 'leven notches. Bill has a stick in his hands. Steve says it looked like a gun to him. Mebbe it did, but it wouldn't have looked that way to a man with a grain of sand in his gizzard. Bill gets up as Steve comes along and sings out:

"Hello, Steve, but I want ye to do me a little favor.

"And what might that be?" asks Steve.

"Git off'n' yer critter and hold up yer hands."

"Yer can't mean it?"

"But I do. I'll give ye jest five seconds."

"With that Bill pints his stick and Steve climbs down. Oh, my soul, but think of it! A critter with 'leven notches in the butts of his guns climbin' down and makin' a fool of himself because a dry stick is panted at him! Bill takes them guns away, robs him of $10 in cash and then mounts the broncho and rides off. Steve gives him a good start and then follows along, and jest as night is settin' in he overhauls the robber. Does he jump in and try to capture him? Does he, even when he knows Bill is asleep, creep up and try to get hold of the guns?

"I'll tell you what he does. He waits till 10 o'clock and then creeps up and begs of Bill to give him back some of his property. Bill invites him into the tent to eat a cold bite and talk it over, and though the guns are lyin' scattered around Steve don't pick one up and turn the tables. He jest sits thar and begs and whines and coaxes until he is booted forth. Excuse these tears, I excuse this sweat on my marble brow. Excuse me that I'm alive instead of a victim of suicide.

"Steve Taylor travels the rest of the night on foot, headed for Sandy Bend. He arrives here at 8 o'clock yesterday mornin' and calls at the Red Dog saloon to wake me up and to say:

"Judge Hoke, I want justice."

"What sort o' justice?" says I, won derin' if I'd heard aright.

"The reglar sort. I've been held up by Bill Whiting and robbed of my all, and I want him punished by the law."

"Think of it! Think of it!" groaned the judge as he looked around the courtroom. "A man as has been held up by a man with a stick, as has had chance after chance of gettin' hold of his guns again, as knoved Bill Whiting for a chump, to come to me and holler for justice! If 10,000 of ye leave this territory tomorrow with shame and humiliation in your faces I shan't blame ye. I struggled with Steve for an hour. I made him understand what was at stake, but it was no use. He wanted justice and nuthin' else, and I issued a warrant for Bill, and the constable brung him in last night. He's sittin' here before us as peart as a jackass rabbit on a June mornin', and from that grin on his face I'm judgin' that he means to plead guilty. How is it, Bill?"

"I held him up and went through him right 'nuff."

"Just listen to that! Was ever such a thing heard of on the face of this airth before?"

"He pleads guilty, your honor," mumbled the victim.

"Yes, durn his hide, he does, but he knows my feelin's in the matter. I could try, convict and send him to prison for five years, but am I goin' to do it? No; a thousand times, no! I'm goin' to throw the case out of court and him on top of it, and if he don't know 'nuff to get a hundred miles away in the next three days then we'll set him down for a fool. As for you, Steve Taylor, as for the man who has shamed and humiliated every squar' man west of the Mississippi and stabbed justice herself to the heart, you will be took outdoors, given the boot by every man in Sandy Bend wearin' boots and then headed up the trail and started on the run. It shan't law, but it's what you hanker for—justice."

"Constable, adjourn the court and remove the condemned!" M. QUAD.

Poisoned With Food.

If one were to say that thousands of people regularly and almost systematically poison themselves with food, it would strike the average layman as extravagant. The opinion of the layman, however, cuts no figure when compared with the scientific deductions of one who has carefully observed the facts. How many people are there who select their food with care, eat it at the right time and in the proper way to secure good digestion and subsequent absorption of just the physiologically correct amount of nutriment required to repair the waste incurred by the duties of everyday life? There are very few. Some starve themselves, but the great majority go to the other extreme and constantly overeat. One eats too much at regular-mealtimes, while another eats less, but feeds more frequently. In either case the digestive apparatus is overtaxed.—A Physician in New York World.

What to Do When Bilious

A Very Busy Man.

A school inspector went to investigate the case of a man who, although he could well afford to keep his children at school, had obtained labor certificates for them all and was taking frequent holidays while the poor little fellows worked to keep the home on.

To his wife's plea that the youngsters' wages were useful when "father" was out of work the inspector replied:

"A mere quibble, ma'am. Your husband has constant work, but is too lazy to do it. His employer told me so."

"Then it's a wicked story, and I'm not particular who hears me say it!" cried the woman indignantly. "My husband is the busiest man in England, bar none. Why, he was up at day-break this mornin' teachin' my youngest lad to swim, an' he's walked ten miles across plowed fields to fly a pigeon an' won a bounce ball contest an' a boxin' match since dinner, an' now, to wind things up," she added as a final proof of her husband's amazing industry, "he's down in the wood yonder trainin' his dog to catch an' kill rabbits without leavin' the marks of his teeth on 'em. If you want more work than that crowded into a day, you must be a regular nigger driver."—London Tit-Bits.

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Newbro's Herpicide.
